CELEBRATIONS

LOOKING FORWARD:LOOKING BACK

ANTICIPATIONS

Anticipate:to foresee, expect or consider in advance. While a fiftieth anniversary often leaves much room for reflection, the beginning of the fiftieth year of Northern Garrett High School also brought much to anticipate.

With the opening of the 2001-2002 school year came new possibilities, new problems and new considerations. A host of new clubs opened possibilities students may not have previously considered, while the tragedy of September 11th brought a new type of war with an enemy not easily defined. New rules about not loitering in the halls left many students considering exactly what to do with that four minutes between classes.

While in many ways, this golden anniversary school year was much like any other, but for each and every student there was something that made it different...somehow unique. No matter what it was, it was clear that each anticipation would turn into an event that might someday become a reflection.

Reflections . . . Opening 3

During high school many things change including relationships with friends. Koby Barclay and Bethany Garlitz show their friendship by sharing a special moment together. "My relationships have changed completely. I use to not talk to anyone; therefore, I didn't make many friends. Now, I try to talk to everyone and be everyone's friend." commented Bethany Garlitz. (left)

High school can be a very frightening and anxious time for freshmen. "I think every freshman experiences some anxiety when entering the high school, but after a week or so I think the majority get settled into a routine. I work on stress management in Health class. Plus, when I went to school here (way back), we entered the high school in seventh grade!" stated Mrs. Stough. Teachers can often help freshmen feel more confident and comfortable. (below left)

Many extra-curricular activities require much work and effort. "High school band is much more intense and requires the majority of your time; however, it's a whole lot of fun for people who are willing to devote their efforts to it." quoted Jordan Halsig. Even though it takes a lot of time and effort, many students find that it is a good way to spend their time. (below)

One variable that can help determine what high school friendships students have is the classes that they share with other students. Since some friends, like Mandy Warnick, Randi Wiley, and Jessica Baker, share the same classes, this gives them time together. "I value my highschool friendships by knowing that everyday I'm here, there is at least one or more of my friends here, so I can talk to them and see them." replied Jessica Baker. (above)

High school sports not only take more time, they are also more difficult and challenging. Max Beitzel believes that "In high school, it is better to practice everyday, and it is more competitive to play other high school teams." Competitiveness is just one of the factors that makes high school sports so challenging. (above)

REFLECTIONS OF CHANGE

Students face many new and challenging choices in high school.

Moving from middle school to high school can be a very anxious time for students. "Some changes that I have noticed in high school is that you have more work to do and your challenged more, so you have to study more." quoted Randi Rodeheaver. Many things change like homework, teachers, friends, and responsibilities. Dealing with these changes throughout high school can alter students attitudes, tastes, and personalities.

High school can be a new and challenging environment for freshmen. Many new variables have been thrown into their lives. Some of these changes are welcomed, but some can be intimidating. Students need to be more responsible for their school work. As a sophomore Mike Miller discovered "I'm older, so I am more responsible for homework and class work. I like that change though."

Along with a new environment, comes new friends, new classmates, and new teachers. High school classes may be more difficult; there might be more studying involved, and the teachers may expect more from students, but through all of the hard work comes an even bigger reward.

Visible changes are not the only transformations occurring in students' lives. Attitudes and outlooks on life change as students near the time when they will have to leave high school and enter a totally new world. Learning from their experience in school, students can try to find and grasp their goals in life- reaching for and working towards their dreams of college, of a career, of a family, or just a new experience. "No matter how your heart is breathing, if you keep on believing the dream that you wish will come true." observed Caroline Stahl.

Changes occur throughout students lives, but some of the most memorable times are of highschool challenges and choices. Overcoming obstacles in highschool can help create confidence and an understanding that even if change is unwelcome, it can be a source of strength.

-Megan Brenneman

"I was always really shy, but now that I'm in the high school, I've made more friends and don't care what people think about me."

Brandi Perez

"The one true friend that you have is God's blessing. Treasure them as you would a jewel."

Shane Mayle

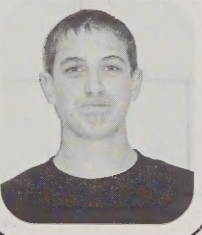

"High school treats you like an adult because I think you have more responsibilities."

Charlie Sines

"Since coming to high school, I have become closer to my classmates and feel more secure being me."

Valerie Mastej

"High school teachers are much better and more concerned about how students do in their class."

CENTER STAGE

Seniors seek careers in show biz.

Do you listen to music and go to theaters? Well if you do, your're just in luck because in our community we have dancers, actors, and singers.

Coty Warn has been dancing since she was three years old, and she did her first play when she was in sixth grade. She's been doing this ever since. Sometimes she gets nervous when she sings in front of people, but as soon as she gets on the stage, she is very comfortable. It's where she loves to be. Coty has butterflies in her stomach, but not because she was nervous, only because she was excited. Last year she performed one of her hardest acts or dances in West Side Story at the Cumberland Theater. Over half the cast were professional dancers, so when they first taught the first dance sequence she was a little intimidated because she didn't get it right away, "but after practicing it become much easier," she said. Coty had help from dance teachers through the years, "But DeWayne Barrett has probably been the greatest teacher." He was the choreographer for the past two shows at Cumberland and he taught her a lot. "Most in part because he has been dancing most of his life and helped choreograph shows across the country on cruise ships and in theaters." She choose to dance because ever since she was little she loved to perform, dance, sing, and act. These were just things she loved to do, plus she used to watch musicals and that helped to spark her interest. Coty plans on going to college for musical theater, and then up to pursue a career in this profession. She doesn't think she would ever be happy doing anything else.

Holly Hare has been singing since she was in 3rd grade. She has been doing this for ten years so far. Holly was nervous through the Elementary school when she performed, but now she doesn't get nervous. Whenever she was nervous, she had to get used to it; she learned to love performing. Her hardest piece of music she had to sing was "O Magnum Misterum" a Latin piece she had to sing for all-states. Holly had help from her mom, Mrs. LcLayghlin, and her voice teacher Kaltheryn Sincell- Corwell. She choose to sing in front of an audience because she loved to perform. Holly wants to keep singing the rest of her life.

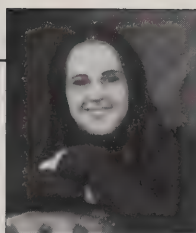

"Coty Warn and Holly Hare might be dancing and singing their way to the big time one day. It will be great knowing they hit it big, "it would be nice to see them on stage or in the movies." said Mr. Newcomer.

MAKING A DIFFERENCE

Students use their academic talent to help others.

The Honor Society program is not only about the academic strengths of the students involved in this club, but also about helping those students who are not so lucky to have academic talents. The students and teachers involved in this organization run a tutoring program every Monday and Wednesday from 3:30-5:30 to help those students who need the academic assistance.

Generally the students who help with the tutoring program said that they felt that they made a difference in the academic grade of the students that they help.

Brooke Butler said that "Yes, I do feel that I really

The students also said that they think they have helped the students in a positive way. Coty Warn said that "I hope so, it is a very beneficial program, and I hope that I helped the students in a positive way." The people involved in this program also felt that the tutoring program was "beneficial to both the students being tutored and the tutors," said Andrea Opel.

In short, the Honor Society is "honored" to help their fellow students by using their academic ability to tutor their classmates.

MORNING ROUTINE

Making connections through the homeroom program.

Every day at exactly 8:35 in the morning students, still trying to get awake through their morning routine, step into their first obstacle of the day-homeroom.

Not only will they have to see the faces of their fellow students in homeroom for 180 days a year, but 720 days out of their high school career. However, there are many positive aspects of homeroom. In the '99/'00 school year, our school adopted The Husky Homeroom Program. This program was designed to support students using a small, comfortable setting. The small groups can then focus on various needs that students may have. Chad Carr stated that he likes the homeroom program because "You don't get mixed in with new people and you are more comfortable."

Many students find this program helpful in many ways. "I feel com-

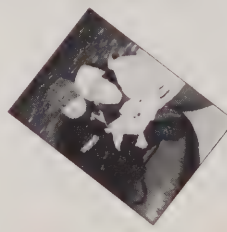

The Husky Homeroom Program gives students a chance to get to know their homeroom teacher and talk about different needs that he/she may have. "I can talk to my homeroom teacher about anything! She is a very big help! And if we had a different teacher every year, I wouldn't have that!" replied Tinsie Wilt. Along with Tinsie and her homeroom teacher, Ms. McDowell, other students find it helpful to talk with their homeroom teachers.

fortable talking to my homeroom teacher because I know her very well and also trust her," commented Ronald Kyle. Having the same homeroom teacher all four years of high school enables students to become closer to their teachers and allows them to talk openly. Karina Miner said that she liked having one homeroom because "You can develop a stronger friendship if you're with the same people all four years." Changing classmates every year can be difficult, but having the same homeroom can allow students to get to know each other and welcome one another every year.

Homeroom can be a place where students can get to know a teacher and turn to them for help. By using this program, both teachers and students can develop stronger friendships with each other.

IN THE BLINK OF AN EYE

A Life Changes

April's Goal: "to prove to the doctors that I can walk again."

How many high school students have this for a goal? On prom night, April Garlitz was involved in a car accident, that has left her damaged for life. She is now paralyzed from her chest down, because of injuring her (C-2 and C-5,6) spinal cord. April and her family and friends have been praying for her. It's a miracle that she has made it this far, (when this incident first happened April was in critical condition and she was unable to move, let alone take care of herself), but hopefully she will regain complete control, like walking again in her lifetime.

April has been through things not even imaginable to the regular person. But remarkably she has returned to school to finish out her senior year. April is still trying to re-learn much of the things we learn when we are really little, such as brushing her hair and teeth, walking, and moving from place to place.

When April was asked what kind of lesson she has learned, she responded, "life is too short and do not take it for granted because it can change in a blink of an eye."

SENIOR VIEWS

Waiting impatiently for graduation day to arrive.

"I can't wait for the last day of school to get here. We have thirty-three days left!" This is what Theresa Miller said as she was walking to her locker after lunch. The day of graduation seemed to take forever to arrive for most of the seniors. Especially as the year came closer to an end.

Jeremy Layman said, "It seems like the last two months of school are taking forever to pass by. But before I know it, I will be walking up to the stage to get my diploma." Every year, a majority of the senior class gets the case of senioritis. Although, at the end of the year, students have a lot of activities and responsibilities to handle before graduation day. The senior trip to Virginia Beach and Busch Gardens took place at the beginning of May. Steffanie Kahl said "I had a lot of fun going to Virginia Beach with all my friends." Fundraisers were going on all year. Senior skip day was a day for seniors to take off and have fun with their friends. Although not every student decided to skip Finals were the biggest responsibility every senior had to worry about at the end of the year. But after all the activities and tests were over, the seniors finally had graduation day and all stress was relieved.

OUTSIDE THE CLASSROOM

Field Trips allow students a change of pace.

Who wouldn't like a change of pace, a chance to get out of the desk, a chance to miss class?
Field trips are something every student looks forward to. Like every year many field trips were planned, such as the Special Olympics, the band trip to Toronto, theater plays like the Outcracker, Of Mice and Men, and the performance of the Ahn Trio at Garrett Community College.

The trip that caught everyone's attention is the Blast trip that was held at the Lyric Opera House in Baltimore. Most guard and band members went on this trip. "It was a lot of fun and well worth it,

TORONTO, CANADA

nitely want to do it again."

and the people were very talented", said Brandy Fike. The nineteen people who participated in the Blast trip enjoyed it; it helped them with basic skills for band and guard. Sophia Holtschneider said
"I had a Blast... get it... haha, the performers were very talented in many different ways, and the performance was awesome. "This was one field trip that was popular for many students.

Field trips will continue to be popular with students whether they're traveling the short distance to GCC or all the way to Las Vegas.

Every year, as juniors are deciding what classes they want to take their senior year, they have the chance to be a teacher assistant. Not every student wants to be an assistant and even if a student puts one period on their schedule as an assistant, it does not mean that they are guaranteed they will get that position. Jamie Dumire said, "I am Mrs. Coburn's assistant. I do light work for her and I get papers copied when she asks." Every teacher can have no more than two assistants. The students are supposed to aid the teacher in whatever help they need. The duties can be from grading papers to running errands. It is not hard to be a teacher assistant. Although when students abuse their privilege as an assistant, their advantages can be taken away. Natalie Ganoe said, "Being a teacher assistant is easy because if the teacher asks for help it is usually small work that is easy to get done."

Not only are there teacher assistants, but there are office and guidance office aids. Jasmine Friend said, "I am an office assistant. I enjoy doing the work they ask me to do." The aids for these rooms mostly take notes to classes to excuse students for different reasons. They also help decorate the rooms for every season and holiday to keep the school filled with spirit. Teacher and office aids are very useful in the school and are an advantage for most of the teachers.

OPPORTUNITIES

Learning hands-on at Northern High.

The vocational wing is a part of Northern High School that many students do not know about when entering school. There are many options in just this one particular portion of the school. Auto Mechanics, Technology Education, Drafting Business classes, Masonry, Electronics, Carpentry, and Computer courses are available. One Student, Tony Durst, mentions, "The vocational wing offers courses you can take to learn a profession in high school then follow on with it when you gradu-

And many of these classes can be useful for everyday life, such as Auto Mechanics where you can learn how to work on your vehicle if you are unfamiliar with motors. Christina Donelley states, "Now that I have taken Auto Mechanics class, I can now repair my car without a guy."

SENIOR CHOICES

Not your typical school year

As technology has increased so has choices for classes during the senior year. Through the Distance Learning Lab, which is linked to GCC, students may attend college classes in the morning. The lab has a two way television screen so that the students are part of the class. They talk back and forth and really are part of the college class. Students receive college credit at a discounted price. Distance Learning student, Emily Downton had this to say about the class, "The best thing is we get to sleep in on Friday mornings. Because GCC doesn't have class on Fridays we aren't required to be at school until third period. It is really nice to have an extra day to sleep in."

Another program offered is ECAP, Early College Admissions Program. Students may attend a local college and take their freshman year of college during their senior year of high school. Emily Rowe is in this program and said, "For me, there really aren't any negatives, I'm getting

DISTANCE LEARNING CLASS

"Distance Learning is fun because we don't have to come to school until third period on Fridays and other days when the college is closed. It's also fun because we don't always have a teacher in the room. I am really happy I participated in the distance learning experience," said Ethan Devore.

college credit for all my classes, and I still get to see all of my friends after school and at practice for sports. I don't really miss anything at the high school except for my Spanish class."

A third program we have is School-to-Careers. This program allows you to go out and work at local businesses. The business must be part of your pathway and students usually do not get paid for the work. Randi Beiler goes to a local dentist office and says, "The only disadvantage is that we do not get paid. But I definitely like getting the job experience and getting out of school for a half of a day." The last program available is work release. This program allows students to leave for a half of a day and go to a job. This program pays the students for their work. Students now don't have to spend their senior year at school. With all the new programs students can get ahead in college or get good job experience.

MON AMI

"In many languages friend means loyalty."

"A true friend is someone who is not afraid to be honest with you and someone who will show you their 'true colors,'" Brandi Broadwater thoughtfully states.

Growing through your teenage years is no big problem at Northern High School as long as you have a friend to share the fun times. Friends are a big part of students' lives. Friends come in handy when you need a hug after you just went through a breakup. Friends make your most joyous moment ten times better by saying one word, "congratulations."

Many good accomplishments in students' lives may not get as much attention if they did not have friends. Friends usually tell you "good job," or "you look good today." They influence many lives in positive and sometimes negative ways. But always remember that a friend is not a friend unless they treat you well and make you feel special.

All in all, friends help friends through the good times and bad. "Friends help me through hard times and my friends are always there for me when I need a shoulder to cry on," Jessica Beachy said. Friends are special in many ways. "They help me through thick and thin, playing it from beginning to end," says Kellen Baumgardner.

CELL PHONES

Is a call really that important that you cannot wait until you get home?
At Northern High, students respond positively to this question.

Cell phones, who needs a cell phone? Amanda L. Friend does. "Cell phones are good to have in case of an emergency and so parents and friends can reach you when you are not at home."

This school year, a new rule was made. Cell phones were the topic of discussion. Unlike last year, cell phones are now permitted, but they have to stay on an off position until the end of the day. Many people would wonder why this rule helps since they cannot use their cell phones. But it really does, because last year if you needed your cell phone after school, you had to sneak it and take a risk of getting suspended. But now, "I can bring my cell phone into school without risking getting in trouble. I can now have access to it after school," Annie Donaldson says.

But is this a good thing? Cell phones are illegal to use while driving, but many students still do. Jodi Durst states, "I use my cell phone all the time. I do not always have time to pull over to make one phone call. Unfortunately, the consequences could be deadly because I could forget I was driving, but so far so good."

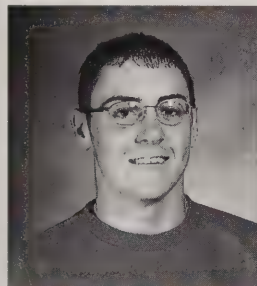

-Kelly Stein

"Cell Phones are very helpful and convient, in fact, I think I would die without one."

Ashly Swauger

As Amy Bonitz checks her caller id, she states, "Cell phones are very convenient," and she thinks that "students at NHS should be allowed to have them in school."

PEACEKEEPERS

Peer Counselors and Mediators can be essential in helping students get along with one another.

Counselors have many jobs that they are required to do. One job that Brandi Broadwater works on is decorating the bulletin boards. "The bulletin boards that are decorated every month in the guidance office and cafeteria add color and spice to the rooms," said Brandi.

"Going to summer camp provided me with a better understanding of the mediation process. Summer camp also helped me to learn to work with other people and to better understand their problems."

Amanda Hahn

Imagine, sitting in the guidance office- decorated with bright, cheerful colors- waiting nervously for a peer mediator to help you discuss an argument you are having with another student. Mediators and counselors can be essential for students to settle their differences.

Mediation is a good way for students to solve their problems with one another in a kind and tactful way. Getting along with other students can help make coming to school everyday less stressful on everyone. "Being a peer mediator has been a great experience. I enjoy helping make the day more bearable for other students," commented Emily Downton.

Students are not the only ones benefiting from this program. The counselors raise money for other organizations. The program is also a chance for them to have a learning experience and to work on improving themselves. "Being the Student Advisor of our mediation program has forced me to become organized," replied Stephanie Frazee. Counselors are also required to go to a summer camp where they learn techniques for mediation. Along with summer camp, the counselors also had to attend conferences in Ocean City. "Ocean City was a blast this year. We learned a lot of new things and even got to get in the ocean. Mama Martin is the best!" stated Annie Donaldson.

Having mediators available for students when they are having disagreements is very beneficial to the entire school. They are the schools behind-the-scenes peacekeepers.

BLIND SKIERS

The better people in this world are people that would rather help others than help themselves.

-Unknown

"It was fun working with Jenny and the other blind skiers because they all were very anxious to learn how to ski," Heather Lander states.

"I really enjoyed being the eyes for blind people to ski."

Chad Carr

"Helping blind skiers was really fun because they are very willing to be taught and they enjoy skiing which makes teaching them fun. Also they have much different insights in things a person could take for granted," Robbie Glotfelty states.

This past ski season twenty-five students from Northern High School, coordinated by Mrs. Barb Law, took part in helping blind skier. They were all part of a fantastic adventure. Not only did the students help the blind ski, but they also had a snow-tubing day. "We broke the record for the most tubes(15) going down the hill at once," Chad Carr answers. Heather Lander was very observant to notice that, "They [the blind skiers] all were very curious and wanted to know everything about skiing." She also states that she "cannot wait until next year because it was such a blast."

Overall, most of the students enjoyed helping the blind, by being their eyes, and they would definitely participate again.

LEVEL HEADED

Students weigh the benefits of taking different levels of classes.

Every student is required to select a career path that he/she will pursue during high school. Not only must he/she carefully select his/her classes, but he/she must also choose the level of class to take. These classes may be chosen based on a student's skills, effort, the people around them, or what they feel is right for them.

There are many reasons for choosing a certain level of class. Teacher recommendations play a major role in what classes students choose. Also what classes a student has taken before can influence their decision of what they will want to take later on in their high school career. Lastly, students may choose a class because of what they will be doing after high school. Britta Lais stated that she chose her classes "Because I am interested in having the best education I can, and I'd rather be challenged than have to be bored with easy work." Taking A.P., honors, and merit classes can help students prepare for the type of classes that they will experience in college.

When deciding on what type of class that a student wants to take, he/she must first decide on the amount of work he/she is willing to put into the class. In any class, students must be willing to extend extra effort. "I think some teachers like to base classes on the students' intelligence, but anybody can be in a merit or honors class just as easy as being in a general class. I don't think students should be based on intelligence but on effort," quoted Jessica McCrobie.

Along with the amount of effort a student is willing to put into a class, comes the benefits of that work. Students taking merit or honors classes receive extra points on their grade for class rank. For example, an 85% in a general class would be a 90% in a merit class or a 95% in an honors class. "I believe that classes should be weighted because taking harder classes takes more time and effort to do well. Although A.P. should be 15 instead of 10 points because it's a step higher than honors," replied Darsey Branthoover. Benefits from these classes may come to students in high school, college, or simply self-satisfaction.

Megan Brenneman

It takes time, work, and effort to succeed in a high school class.

"Smarter kids can take harder classes and not have any trouble and some kids are smart but just don't put any effort into their classes." Many students find that classes take more than just being smart- it takes work and effort.

Andrew Frantz

Students may choose the level of class they want to take depending on many variables. "I chose honors classes because they challenge me and I will be able to get college credits for my A.P. classes," stated Andrea Opel. Other things that students might consider are teacher recommendations or what level of class they have taken before.

Reflections: now & then

"Many of my relatives have gone to Northern including my dad, two aunts, and two uncles."

Robbie Glotfelty

Tiffany Yoder

"My dad graduated from NHS, and it is important to me to live up to my full potential and do as well as he did."

Returned in Stone

Students capture memories and express themselves through class rings.

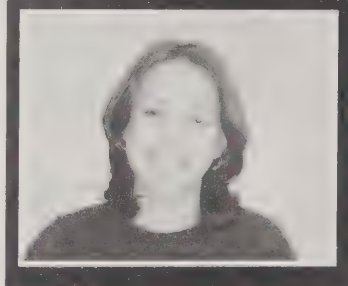

The biggest financial impact on high school sophomores today is purchasing a class ring. This purchase brings the reality of graduation closer.

No matter what people decide, there are many choices for sophomores of the selection of their class rings. Some sophomores get their class rings through Jostens, while some sophomores get theirs at other jewelry stores, such as Kay Jewelers. Some people get gold metal, while others get a white gold metal or silver. Most of the sophomores who purchased class rings say that price was not a factor. Amy Bonitz stated "The price of my class ring was a factor because I didn't want to pay a lot of money if the ring wasn't worth it". Most of the class rings cost between $100 and $400. Fortunately, most of the people who purchase class rings are satisfied with the purchase, mainly because it is a representation of who they are. As Laci Slagle also said "everything I wanted was on it".

Purchasing a class ring is just one step towards capturing high school memories. Leslie Gaither stated "I am very happy with my class ring, because it will let me remember my memories of high school".

-Natalie Ganoe

Miriah Fletcher

Reflecting on the time of year that lets us have fun but gives us a sign that school is coming!

Rides, ribbons, trophies, and fun. . many exciting things happen at the fair. Some people go for the fun and food, yet some who have animals stay all week. Having animals can be challenging yet fun. According to Rachel Schmidt, "It's bad yet good staying all night at the fair, because you can stay up all night and watch what's going on late at night."

Over the past years the fair has changed, yet it hasn't. According to Torrey Poholsky, "The fair seems less interesting, because it is a signal that school is coming." The fair can change because the people change. Even though the fair means school is on it's way, there are still good parts about it.

Many people like the rides, food, and fun. Yet some others like looking through the barns and seeing exhibits. Most of all, many people like to watch the truck and tractor pulls that go on during the night." I like the tractor pulls because it is loud and very fun to watch," answers Derek Buckel.

So, the fair is a time for fun and friends, but there is also work that needs done. It may mean school is coming, but that does not stop everybody from having fun. The fair usually takes place the second week in August at the Garrett County fair grounds in McHenry, Maryland by the lake.

-Michelle Bender

Robbie Glotfelty

Some think the fair has changed by the rides, people, and animals. Some others have different opinions. "It has become less fun because the rides are boring, and it is now basically a social event," said Robbie Glotfelty.

Michelle Bender stands with her award winning cow at the fair. She won two trophies,a plaque and ribbons. "I enjoy doing this and hope to do it next year as well," said Michelle.

Many people like the rides that go up and down and upside down. "I like the Casino because of the music,"says Laura Benedict.

"I like the truck pulling contests because I do truck pulling on the East Coast for fun and money as well," says Joe Colmer.

While standing up in the front of the class something that really bugs me is students who don't ask questions when I know that they do not understand." Also "students who do not work up to their potential bother me," said Mr. Talerico.

While sitting in class there are several things that can be distracting. People talking, girls, cold air and things buzzing around," quoted Jerry Taub. (Below right)

Talking to other students and writing letters are class distractions. According to Andrew W. Clark, listening to other teachers talk while trying to work is a distraction to me."

While sitting in the chair, T.J. Durst explains what distracts him while sitting in class. "What distracts me is when I'm sitting in class trying to work and little paper balls go flying past my face," said T.J. Durst.

Mind over Matter

What really distracts students and teachers while they are sitting in class?

While sitting in class and trying to concentrate, you find yourself very distracted. You can't focus on what the teacher is saying. Snow is falling heavily, and whispers of an early dismissal echo through the room.

Some of the most common distractions for students were people coming into class while they are trying to work. Another distraction for students is students not staying quiet when they are suppose to, and students showing off and acting up while they're in class. Tiffany Swiger is distracted by students not staying quiet enough to do a test. For other students like Ben Williams there are different things like "the heat being too cold or too hot." Students are not the only ones with distraction. Teachers get distracted also. Mr. Price listed many things that distract him while in class. "One major distraction is being asked 'Did I miss anything?' after the student has been absent two weeks," Also "when one snowflake falls hearing 'Hey, we're getting out early.'" One thing that distracts all teachers not just Mr. Price is "students not coming to class prepared and on time."

Clearly class distractions are things students and teachers must face each school day.

-Heidi Preston & Amanda Fazenbaker

Mrs. Beitzel

"Disrespectful people coming up and opening doors when I'm trying to give directions are considered a distraction. Also students clicking their pens gets to me very easily," stated Mrs. Beitzel.

Science fair, a required competition, provides students with an opportunity to build on what they learn in the classroom.

Some say the science fair is boring while others enjoy the experience.

Megan Zimmerman stated, "It was a requirement for me to participate in the science fair. I found that all my hard work paid off."

The science fair begins at NHS. It took place in the restored gymnasium for the first time. There was a lot of room for all the projects, and it was very well-organized. Zach Bruch said, "It was interesting getting the results of my project." Each student in a merit class or above must submit a project in the fair. Each student presents their project to an adult who will eventually judge each project in the group and place the best three. The first three places move on to a bigger fair at FSU, where awards and scholarships are given out.

It takes a lot of work and time to complete a project. Anna Karsten stated, "I did the best I could on my science fair project. Anything worth doing is worth doing right."

-Trisha Kamp

Brandi Wagner

Brandi Wagner presents her science fair project to the judge. Brandi said, "Although my project was mandatory, I had a lot of fun with my experiment."

Students Express Thier Opinions on Scheduling

JANINE BEACHY

Janine Beachy observes as Mrs. Martin helps her set her schedule for next year. Janine quoted that "I chose to be in child care because I love little kids. I want to become a teacher or open a daycare."

CRYSTAL RUSH

Crystal Rush looks as Mrs. Martin helps her figure out next year's schedule. Crystal said that "I choose to be a teacher for grades K-3 because I enjoy being around little kids. They're so adorable."

Decisions, Decisions

Every year around February and March, students from grades nine through eleven are faced with scheduling. Overall, students take a large part in scheduling their classes for the next year.

There are many reasons why the students enjoy scheduling their classes the year before. Sonya Broadwater said that "I think scheduling is a good thing because it helps you figure out plans for college." Laura Costa also commented about scheduling, she stated that "Scheduling has lots of career classes and courses to help people with different career paths do what they want to do when they get out of highschool." Even though it's the first time that freshmen have scheduled in high school, according to Chloe Bauernmaster, "Scheduling is actually easy." Scheduling could be a pain, but according to Abbi Sisler, "Scheduling is good to have because then you know what classes you'll have."

Though many options may be confusing, everyone looks forward to scheduling their future classes in advance. Many students think that scheduling is actually better than what it sounds like it is going to be.

"For my band initiation, the seniors poured syrup all over me then made me roll down a hill covered in pine needles, and then threw flour on me at the bottom. I didn't think my initiation was that harsh."

Lakin Weimer

"I had to dress up in crazy outfits every day for soccer initiation. I thought it was kind-of fun!"

HOW FAR IS TOO FAR? WHAT CROSSES THE LINE INTO HAZING?

Rites of Passage

Freshman initiations are a tradition that have created controversy at some schools. Some students simply don't know the difference between fun and torture. As stated by Robbie Bowman, "Many initiations cross the line into hazing by any kind of physical abuse, theft, or mental games students play to discriminate others."

Luckily, at Northern instances such as "pink bellying" and other harmful activities considered to be hazing do not occur. The purpose of an initiation is to welcome freshmen into sports teams and other organizations they may belong to. Most consist of dressing in silly clothes or singing and dancing in front of the cafeteria. "I feel that initiations are okay because they are fun. If you make a big deal about it, the seniors will make your initiation worse," states Tiffany Yoder.

Initiations also help members of the school recognize new players. For example, Girls' Varsity Club has a week long initiation where each day is devoted to a different theme. The girls have to dress according to the theme for that day. One of the days this year was camo day.

"Initiations can be both fun and harmful. It all depends on what you do," commented Chris Fickes. As long as initiations stay under control, hazing will not be a problem for Northern High freshmen, and the tradition will continue.

Students and teachers reflect on the necessity of hall passes.

MICHELLE BENDER

At Northern there are different types of hall passes. Michelle Bender stated "I have a hall pass for year-book, but sometimes my agenda book is required."

MR. MORANDUZZO

Some teachers agree with hall passes and other's disagree. Mr. Moranduzzo stated "Yes, we should have hall passes, it's up to the staff to make sure they're used."

To Have or Not to Have

"We shouldn't (have hall passes) because hardly anyone uses them and no one ever checks to see if we actually have one," stated Nicole Doerr. When we asked students if they thought we should have agenda books, we received many responses, but ironically most of them were similar.

Some students responded to our question with questions of their own. Like why do we need agenda books? And what good are they? Dianna Miller stated "No, I don't think we should because no one checks to make sure you're using it, and they're only an inconvenience".

Most students feel that they are useless and just take up more time having to fill them out. "Hall passes are useless and pointless" stated Mike Miller.

At Northern the rule is supposed to be that students aren't allowed in the hall without a pass, but if this is indeed the rule then why doesn't anybody, (including the teachers) follow this rule? Most teachers don't even care if a student has his/her hall pass, they just let you go. "Nobody ever checks you in the hallway to see if you have your agenda book anyways" stated Tiffany Miller.

New students' perspectives on their acceptance into the student body

Home Sweet Home?

New students arrive at our school every year, some years especially when they don't know more than others; but do we create a welcome environment for these newcomers or not? According to Melissa Llewellyn, "The majority of students gave me a hard time, but others were accepting."

Others find their first day very scary, especially when they don't know more than others; but do we create a welcome environment for these newcomers or not? Ruth Ann Ketner, originally from Southern, reflects on the experience in the overall change of schools. "The difference between the schools bothered me, but it was all right." Many students said that the experience of changing schools was good for them because they like to meet new people.

Moving to a new location and going to a new school is not an easy thing to go through. "On my first day I wasn't really scared because I already knew some people and had friends here," explains Andi Jenkins. For the most part, the student body is supportive of new students and tries to make their transition as easy as possible.

"When new students come, everyone judges them even before they know their name. They really don't care about being nice to them. People here really aren't open to new and different things."

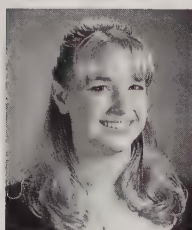

-Daphne Brendle

"It depends. Sometimes they give them a hard time, and sometimes they don't."

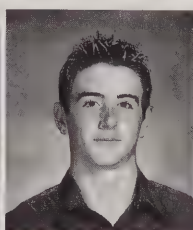

-Josh Turner

While standing in front of a classroom Mr. Lewis stated " Substitute teaching at Northern High always leaves me with a smile!" Mr. Lewis just began substituting here this year.

Change of Pace

SUBSTITUTES ADD VARIETY TO CLASSROOM

Every teacher becomes ill once in awhile. A sick child or personal appointments are a few reasons why a substitute is needed. Being a substitute is an excellent way of sharing knowledge, and it brings with it a change for each new day.

Classroom atmosphere takes on a new direction when the regular teacher is not there. Some students spend their time watching videos or doing book work, while others choose to waste their time- throwing paper, passing notes, talking or day dreaming. "I enjoy being with all the students, and I have a job to do. I feel it is important to get their work done and make it count for a grade; that is part of my job. I also just like being here and feel like doing something worthwhile," said Mrs. Menges.

Sometimes who the substitute is may influence what goes on during the class period. "Normally when a sub is in, I will goof off, but it just all depends on who the sub is and if I think the normal teacher will look and see what I did the day that they were out," stated John Beachy.

Just When is a Teacher's Job Done?

TOPLEFT: Megan Sisler put in time in after school for band. Even though we put in a lot of time after school it is all worth it.

BOTTOMLEFT: Mrs. Brenneman stays after to help students improve their grades. Tutoring is a very valuable service offered to students. Many have taken advantage of it.

MIDDLE: Mr. Price rules Mock Trial. "Hmmm... I wonder how many of these students will wind up in front of a real judge."

RIGHT: Mr. Newcomer prepares to make life easier. "Tutoring provides students with the extra help they need. I wish more students would take advantage."

The Day Isn't Over at 3:15

Extracurricular activities involve teachers, too.

Most people think that being a teacher is well worth it because they work 8:30 to 3:30, get weekends off, holidays off and the whole summer off. Well, that is not always true, in fact it is seldom true. There are high numbers of teachers who stay after school and dedicate their time to help students.

When asked about the after school life of a teacher Mr. Price responded "Most teachers here at NHS put in the extra time and effort. This is not because it is in our contract. A lot of the extra time we spend here we do not get paid for, but we do it because it is part of the job of being a teacher." Even when the teachers leave school, their job still is not done, most of them have work to take home with them.

ENVIROTHON

"Coaching the NHS Envirothon team is a real pleasure. The students are hard-working and enthusiastic. I won't be surprised to see some of them pursue careers in natural resources."

- Ms. McDowell

But if you look at the world of teaching, it really does pay off to be a teacher because you get to help many students become who they are and help them get the skills that they need to survive in the real world after high school.

Mrs. Brenneman stays after school to help in the library with tutoring. "The tutoring program was started several years ago as an after-school activity. This year it was expanded to the library after-school program, in which four teachers volunteered."

The after-school tutoring program was used to help students who needed extra help after school with their school work or home work.

NOW AND THEN

Playing For Pride at Northern High School

Many great athletes have passed through the doors of Northern Garrett High School, but one person does not make up the team. Here at Northern High we do have and have had great sports teams. Just four years ago, the wrestling team finished with an undefeated season, and in 1996 the Girls' Basketball team won the Regional Championship. Not to mention, in 1985 the Volleyball team won the State Championship Title.

Despite hardships, like losing many varsity players at last year's graduation, throughout the years we have still had many great championship teams, as well as champions. This year, we have had the pleasure of having champions on sports teams. Mark Bergstrom (Golf) was named to All WMIL and Juswas also named to All WMIL and All Area. While the football team had a difficult season, there were many great athletes among the team. Ethan Devore, Cheston Bachtel, Joel Resh, and Trey Brenneman were all named to the First Team for the Mountain Top Athletic Conference, and one more champion we have had the pleasure of having this year at Northern is Trisha Kamp. She was named MVP Player of this year's Girls Soccer team. Petey Stein also went on to become a repeat State Champion in wrestling.

Even though to many this year seemed ordinary, to the players it will be an unforgettable season. The struggles they overcame and the difficulties they faced, will also be unforgettable.

Kelly Stein

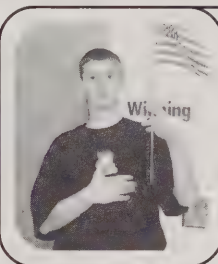

"I really enjoyed playing soccer this year, it was a great experience playing with all of my friends. I just hope we can work harder and try to succeed this past season, next season."

Megan Shaffer

"This year was great, proving to everybody that our cheerleading team can succeed. Being able to go to competition was also great."

Stephanie Hutzel

"Soccer this year was really fun. I liked playing for Northern High. It really made me feel like part of group, and I will be looking forward to next season."

Robert Fontaine

"I really enjoyed playing volleyball at Northern High. 'V' my team screamed to me, as they introduced my name. It really made me feel like I was part of a big family. I will always have those great memories."

Valene Snyder

"This season I had tons of fun. Laughing with Lakin [Weimer] and being part of a team. I am really looking forward to next fall, so our soccer team can rejoin again."

Tiffany Yoder

"We were a young team compared to the teams we played (mostly freshmen and sophomores), so I am waiting until next year rolls around. Hopefully our soccer teams can succeed a little higher than last year."

Varsity recovers from loss

Adversity

While Varsity struggles, Junior Varsity is on fire.

While the varsity football team struggled to win many of their games this year, the J.V. football team won almost every single one of their games. For the J.V. football team Corey Fike stated that "teamwork and the will to win" contributed to the team's winning season. Travis Jaco stated that practices and teamwork also contributed.

Compared to previous Varsity football seasons, the team did struggle; however, they lost seven seniors last year, which caused a drastic change in the team's lineup. Although it may not show in the record, the team practiced hard and attempted to win every game they played.

Cheston Bachtel stated that his senior year has been great. "I enjoyed the football season and I had a fun time with my teammates." Ethan DeVore stated that all together, football was fun this year. "Our record wasn't great, but we had a good team with excellent players." The varsity team overall had a successful season. Out With The Old In With The New Change

Only four short years ago, the girls soccer program was started here at Northern. The girls that started with the team graduated this year. There were eight seniors who participated on the team all four years and nine seniors total. Each senior had a blast this year and believe they came a long way since their freshman year of soccer. "There have been so many good memories over the years, but my most memorable time was my sophomore year with Coach Lantz. We had so much fun at practice and we won the WMIL Championship that year," quoted senior Brooke Butler.

Although it did not show in the record, the girls did show drastic improvement by the end of the year. This was the first year that the team made it past the second round of playoffs. This was not the only change this season. This was also the first year there were enough girls to form a J.V. team. The J.V. team had an outstanding season. Many of the J.V. players played on both J.V. and varsity. "I enjoyed playing Varsity and J.V. both, but I got more playing time on J.V.," said freshman Megan Shaffer.

Once again the girls soccer team had new coaches. Over the four years they had a total of eight different coaches. This year the girls were lead by Lynn Lais and Beth Shaffer. Senior Kara Kenner stated "If our present coaches would have started coaching after our sophomore year, we would have been unstoppable." There were also volunteers that went to their practices and helped to coach them at games.

With new coaches and a J.V. team, hopefully the girls soccer team will continue for at least four more years.

Young talent builds hope for future

The soccer team had somewhat of a struggle this year. With losing six seniors they had a lot of work ahead of them. The team had young talent but just could not pull things together. Their record was 3-11. The team consisted of six seniors and many freshmen. Max Beitzel said, "High school soccer was a lot different from AYSO because we practiced and played a lot more and a lot harder."

The guys may not have had the best record, but most of them had an awesome time playing. Shawn Fike stated, "It was a disappointing season when it comes to our record, but we all had a blast."

Adam Dewitt also said, "I had a great year because I got to play on the Varsity Team all year." After a hard fought season the guys went to Boonsburo for playoffs. Three players were injured but played anyway. They could not bring it together and lost 2-0.

Senior Guy Beitzel had this to say about the season, "We played hard, did our best, and had a great time doing it." All of the underclassmen are looking forward to next year's soccer season.

Working Together Success Players make the team

The girls' volleyball team proved that team work makes the difference. The varisty team ended their season with a 11-4 record, and the JV team ended their season with a 13-2 record.

Even though there were only three seniors on the team this year, the juniors pulled together and helped make the varisty team stronger. In fact, there were so many juniors that some had to play on JV. Nicole Sisler spoke for the seniors when she said, "As a senior, there is always more responsibility because you are looked up to and you are modeled. Also, we have the responsibilty of keeping everyone in good spirits even at the end of a difficult match."

In the past, most teams had tryouts, but not this volleyball team, if you show up to the first practice, you are on the team. Tiffany Swiger spoke for the team when asked about tryouts, she said, "I think there should be tryouts because too many people don't get a chance to play."

Tryouts aren't the only thing that has changed, uniforms have also changed over the years. When asked about uniforms, Lauren Wiley said, "Yeah, volleyball uniforms have changed a lot! Uniforms used to be long sleeved t-shirts for a jersey and short shorts. Now most teams wear spandex and tank-tee jerseys. Unfortunatley, our team wears soccer uniforms; I personally would much rather wear spandex."

Concentration Team fares well despite loss of talent Pressure

Golf? "Isn't that where you hit the ball and try to get it into a hole?" That is what some think golf is. A sport where all you do is hit the ball and try to get it into a hole. Well, not according to the school golf team. According to Andrew Hady, "Golf is so interesting because it takes concentration." As well as needing concentration, golf can be fun. "Golf is interesting because it's a new game everyday," quotes Jason Rice.

There are good things about being on the golf team. "I think it would have to be the relaxed atmosphere," quotes Michah Plevyak. Other than just the relaxed atmosphere, playing and goofing around with the teammates was another good thing. "Free, free, free and free golf, and getting out of school for matches is a good thing!" quotes, Willie Rock. As well as good things, there are bad things about being on the golf team.

"The worst part is the pressure to achieve greatness. Golf is a advanced sport, more difficult than most believe it to be. My game has been the hardest part for me, especially with being a senior next year," quotes Willie Rock.

The golf team went on to get many first places and even some fourths. Overall they did a good job with their two best players lost. "The team lost it's two best golfer and yet the team turned it into a good season with the Bergstrom brothers leading the way," quotes coach, Harv Speicher.

So golf is not just a sport where you hit the ball and try to get it in a hole. It takes concentration, willingness to play a different game and being able to play hard. Golf is a more advanced sport, and it is not all about just hitting a ball and trying to get it into a hole!

What Is It To You...

TEAM

Family, Effort or Potential?

What do the words potential effort, and family mean to you? To the boys' basketball team these words mean a lot; they describe their team and the team members.

When asked to describe their team in one word, there was a huge variety of words. To Matt Younkin the word "Effort" came to mind, he said, "No matter what challenge was ahead of us, we worked hard to overcome it." For instance this team had to work extra hard because they only had a few returning starters. Jason Rice describes this years team as a "Family", he said, I would definitely describe this team as one big family. We may not be best friends, or even friends at all, but we each recognize that whatever happens to the individual, also happens to the team."

To Landon Southerly the team can be describe as having potential, because "we have lots of talent and potential to be good; we just haven't fulfilled our potential or played hard enough to win some of the games we should have won."

No matter what the individual players said to describe their team it was all positive, which goes to show that they are like one big happy family.

Success Found . . .

Respectable, loving, sympathetic, compensating, and reliable can be used to describe the Girls' Basketball team. They have overcome many struggles throughout the season including many players being injured. The injuries ranged from sprained ankles to pulled muscles to broken wrists. Not to mention that the girls' team was already hurting because of the small number of members. "With only seven people on varsity and eight on junior varsity, our practices were tough," Heather Lander said. Having to make up for the lack of members was hard work for the team. "Many players sat out at our practices and it especially hurt us in our games because we did not practice together," states Molly Wolf.

Despite injuries and the lack of members, the girls team managed to have fun. The team really grew together, not only as teammates, but as friends, even best friends, enjoying laughs on the way to the games and jokingly making fun of each other. They even helped each other out with guy problems. Also, "we enjoyed being in shape, getting to know one another and most of all, playing basketball," Lakin Weimer says.

Something To Cheer About

110%

2002 State &

Champs

The 2002 Northern Husky Cheer Team really had something to cheer about this year. With "110%" as their motto, the girls competed in the Maryland state championship and took a first place trophy home with them. This is the first time Northern's cheer team has ever taken first at the state level. They then went on to compete in Atlantic City, New Jersey.

"Being number one is a great feeling, especially after all the hard work everyone put into it," said Abbi Sisler.

Fans and coaches discovered that not only do they have spirit, but the cheer team also has determination and dedication. Putting in many long hours of practice paid off. "In my ten years of coaching, this is truly one of the best squads we have had," reflects

Coach Lisa Carr. Students, parents, and coaches are all very proud of the squad's accomplishments. This year will definitely be memorable for all.

"The thing I will remember most about this year is going to States and New Jersey, and all of the fun times we had there," recalls Kimmy Beiler.

The girls were thankful for everyone that made a donation to the team helping them get to Atlantic City. Over $2,000.00 was raised thanks to local businesses and individuals. The NHS Cheer Team also held a two week hoagie sale raising about $1,200.00. Squad members felt that it was great to see the community and school pull together to help make their dreams come true, and are very thankful to all the businesses, the band and other sports divisions within the school for their help.

Breaking Even Almost Team struggles for winning season

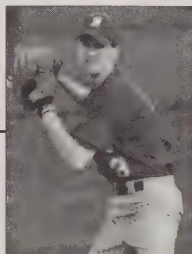

The 2002 Husky varsity baseball team had a fairly successful season with an almost even record of 9-10; however, the JV team was not as successful, winning only two of their 15 games. The five seniors: Greg Whittemore, Trey Brenneman, Elliot Perfetti, Bryan Lenhart, and Kellen Baumgardner will be hard to replace. Whittemore led the team in RBI's cranking in an amazing 24 runs this season and also had the team's highest batting average. Lenhart drove in four homeruns with Whittemore holding a close second at three. Baumgardner and Chad Carr held the top spot for stolen bases, each snagging four. Jason Rice led the team in pitching with 51 strike-outs, and Trey Brenneman took the top rank in fielding with 110 catches.

Despite their skills, neither JV or Varsity could defeat their biggest rival, Southern. "Southern had a strong defense and were good at the plate," comments Michael Bergstrom.

Bunt, take, steal, ball, strike, foul, slide, safe, and out... these are terms that the Lady Huskie Softball team became very familiar with this season. April Slagle was the new coach for the softball team and lead them. "This season was fun but different with our third coach in four years. We still had fun even if we won or lost" says Jolene Brenneman. Coach Slagle pushed the team every night at practice to make them better by making them do push-ups, sit-ups, running hickory or ten laps around the gym and the worst was suicide runs which only made the team better at hustling the bases.

"I really enjoyed this season because of our three new coaches who pushed us to do our best, and my teammates who made my season the best" said Bridget Frazee. The team had four returning seniors this year, and Jayme Miller, Sarah Masters, and Dani Glotfelty as the three freshmen on varsity. The whole varsity team worked hard not only as teammates but as friends. They enjoyed the bus rides and the time they spent together.

This season the team came together not only as teammates but as friends, not only to win but to make the season fun, and memorable, with the help of the new coach and seniors, the team accomplished every goal.

Bang! And the Huskies are off for the finish line. This is what goes through many minds of athletes at track meets. Many team members had been on the track team before and for some, it was a new experience. "I enjoyed going to different schools and meeting new people," said Ruthann Ketner. Some liked just being able to do things after school with peers they didn't really get to know until track season.

For others, this was their last year for track.

"My last year was pretty good. It was fun and I am going to miss it," replies Ethan DeVore. Others are glad it is over while some wish they could still be on the track team.

Being on the track team takes many skills. Some are more important than others. "An important skill for me is energy and strength. When running, I need the energy to get strength," answers Nick Maxim.

The track team did well overall this year. And they hope to do even better next year.

Through the Years

Changes

Throughout the history of Northern High School, many sports have come and gone. While some memories fail to remain others have left behind legacies that future athletes strive to attain. Not only do skills and talent make up a sport, but also pride, enthusiasm and determination. "I think that all of the sports have improved throughout the years with new coaches and teammates" quoted Stephanie Hutzel

The 50th Anniversary of Northern has arrived; however, it seems that athletics have adapted well to the changes. While some sports remain unchanged such as football which came about in 1958, softball and baseball which were also played in 1958, basketball in 1958, wrestling in 1952 and volleyball in 1952, sports like track and tennis and golf and soccer have been added giving students additional opportunity to compete. "Compared to 1952, females have a greater opportunity to participate in athletics. At NHS it wasn't until the 70's that females were given the chance to participate in sports" quoted Mrs. Stough

As another school year comes to an end it is time to stop and recall how sports have changed in the last 50 years.

LOOKING AHEAD

Opportunities of a Lifetime

Taking a moment to reflect on the past, students at JHS remember their childhood experiences, their first friends at school, growing older, and finally stepping out into high school for the very first time. They look back and smile remembering all they have accomplished, only to look ahead and see the challenges the future holds. Friends, fashion, hangouts, events in their lives - these are all things that come and go but will be remembered for a lifetime.

Christopher Fickes says,

"When we were in elementary school, we had little cubbies that were big, but as we got older the lockers got smaller and closer together."

Even elementary school events will always be remembered. Phillip Uphold says, "I enjoyed my high school experience, but I am looking forward to what the future will bring."

High school memories last a lifetime. The decisions the students make and the goals they achieve can be very important in the future.

September 11th started out as an ordinary day, but students soon discovered that it was anything but ordinary. Knowledge of an attack on the World Trade Center, Pentagon, and a plane crash in Shanksville, Pennsylvania spread through the school during second period as astonished students watched the events on television. Throughout the school, pencils were unused, chalk was put away, and thoughts were turned from grammar and arithmetic to the tragedy that would leave everyone holding their breath.

After September 11th, the atmosphere around the school changed. "It is a whole new topic that no one understands. There are many questions but not enough answers." noted Autumn Kitchen. Many teachers allowed students

"I put a dollar in the collection at lunch because I knew that was a small way to help that would result in a big way."

- Elizabeth Rogers

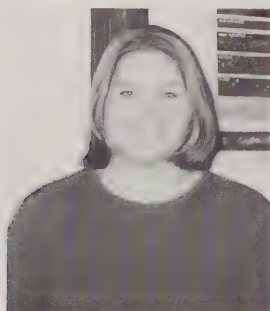

to continue to watch the news in class and discussions about the events were going on around the school. Acts of patriotism were seen everywhere. Teachers wore symbolic ribbons, students decorated homeroom doors with flags during spirit week and came to school decked out in red, white, and blue. And in the parking lot, rows of cars were adorned with the colors of the American flag.

Donating money to the relief efforts was a convenient way for students to show patriotism. "I put a dollar in the collection at lunch because I knew that was a small way to help that would result in a big way." commented Elizabeth Rogers. The guidance center raised the money and was overwhelmed by the response they received from students, who raised over 1,700 dollars. Mrs. Martin, who was amazed at the students' willingness, said "We undertook this endeavor just because we felt we wanted to do 'something.'" It turned into a wonderful outpouring of caring and sharing. It made me want to tell everyone how wonderful and kind our students are." These events will always be reflected by teachers and students.

-Megan Brenneman

"We learn about the past everyday in school and now that events like these are actually happening, it feels like we're living in a history book."

Valene Snyder

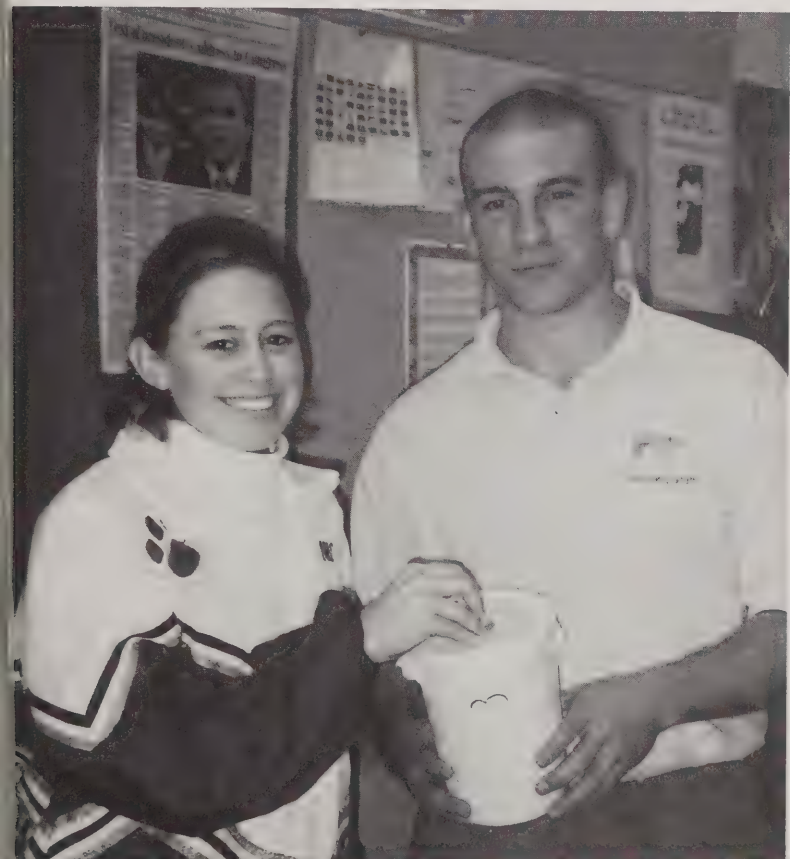

"We have been trying to help other people during their time of need. Our youth group, for example, hosted a potato bar at our church to raise money for the New York relief efforts."

Every day in homeroom students say the pledge. Ashly Swauger noted that "Since September 11th, almost everyone says the pledge and before September 11th only one or two people would say it." The attacks on America made everyone feel a sense of patriotism to their country. (below left)

Many students participated in red, white, and blue day during Spirit Week. Heather Lander and Amanda N. Friend both showed their patriotism for their country on this day. Heather said "I dressed to support our country because it was fun and now that I look back after September 11th I was glad I supported my country on Red, White, and Blue Day." (below right)

Any students found that donating a little money was a convenient way to help victims from September 11th. Amanda L. Friend said "Our class helped by donating money on lunch shifts and in Mr. Edwards room." Donation containers were found in some of the teachers rooms, along with every lunch shift. (above)

Throughout the school there were signs of patriotism and the parking lot was no different. Tabitha Beitzel said, "September 11th was a terrible situation to hear about, and I put a flag on my car to show respect and care for America." Cars, adorned with flags, were seen throughout the student parking lot. (above right)

Eating pizza, playing games, browsing the mall, or just chillin' at a friend's house; students find ways to get together despite the limited activities Garrett County has to offer.

Not many things have changed over the years. Students in 2001 do pretty much the same things as former students did to have fun. The only thing that has changed is the places where kids do what they do to have fun.

"Smiley's seemed to be the place to go this summer since there isn't much to do around here," explained Jodi Fratz. "We talk with friends and check for 'hotties' while attempting to play mini-golf."

The Fort was a popular place for students to get together in the summer. Most people play arcade games, ride go-karts, and play a round of mini-golf.

On the other hand, students who work there try to avoid the fort all together. "We find other things to do with our free time, like going boating on the lake. The Fort gets old after being there everyday,"

"Smiley's seemed to be the place to go ..."

-Jodi Fratz

commented Annie Donaldson.

So what else is there to do around here besides the Fort and the lake? Grantsville students find themselves gathering at Hey Pizza. Lee Yoder spends his evenings eating pizza and chatting with his friends. "I think hanging out at Hey Pizza will be a tradition that is continued for many years."

Taking a look back into the past, former students reflect on their high school hangouts. "We used to hang out at the Hill Top Delight, and sometimes the mall," Mr. Edwards recalled. "Hill Top threw everyone out of there about five years ago, so that tradition stopped, but people will always hang out at the mall. Why though I do not know."

However, Ms. Slagle's perspective is a little different. "I never really had a high school hangout, I was family farm slave."

There is no doubt about that the tradition of hanging out with friends will always be continued from year to year. It will be interesting to watch as current hangouts fade and others develop as the area continues to grow.

One word every trendy student dreads is "UNIFORMS." Would uniforms solve any social problems? Well, as Jesse Rawley would put it, "If students had to wear uniforms, we would still act the same to each other." Many people would agree. Though students may judge other people by the type of clothes they wear, should the school system really take away their freedom to express themselves? Most people's clothes reflect their personality and the way they express themselves. The question still remains, would uniforms change anything? Cristy Holler states, "No, because I would change it somehow, like with hot

Then there are the students who think that uniforms would solve social problems. Chloe Bauermaster says "Uniforms would have a positive effect on the student body. It would let the students feel more organized, and it would allow everyone to dress more appropriately." Chloe is one of the many students who believes that others wouldn't be so distracted by who is wearing what and what's in and what's not. They would be able to concentrate on things like school work and their grades. So can people really judge people by the clothes they wear? Do clothes really reflect the person you are? Most people say no, but what do people see first, clothing or what's on the inside?

What was dating like through the years? Teachers and students share their opinions about where to go on dates and different rules for dating. Curfews, the strictness of parents and the age the first date occurred are some of the changes seen throughout the years.

One difference according to Mr. Opel was "sometimes you would walk out of a classroom, and see students all over each other, and teachers wouldn't say anything about it." That has changed from today because the rules are limited to hand holding only.

A similarity according to Mr. Nicklin was "that when he was in high school they would just go to movies, dances, football games, and hang out by doing things as a group." These are many things that are similar to now.

"Me and my boyfriend enjoy hanging out together and going to the movies. We always have fun when we are together."
Theresa Miller

Most teachers said dating was a milestone, but their parents weren't strict about who they went out with because they usually double-dated and went to the movies to hang out with friends.

Students discussed their first dates, and where they liked to go. In middle school, many first dates consisted of going to the movies. A freshman, Tiffany Doerr, said she was in seventh grade when she went to the movies on her first date. Trevor Butler, another freshman, said he has never been on a date but goes out with friends to the movies. Both teachers and students have gone on dates to the movies because it's another popular place to hangout. Sophomore Brandy Custer, was in ninth grade when she went on her first date. And now when she goes on a date, she likes to go dancing or go to the movies.

Jason Rice, a sophomore, went on his first date in the seventh grade to the movies and diner.

Dating, then is similar to today; however, the rules have changed.

Tradition

"Amanda and I enthusiastically cheer along with the cheerleaders to get our school spirit soaring."

Kristin Hoffman

"I was surprised to be chosen as Homecoming Queen."

Ashley Robinson

What is Homecoming? Is it the dance, the game or the week of wonderful wacky people parading the halls? This year it had a little twist. Thursday was Red White & Blue day, in remembrance of those who lost their lives on September 11, Wilbur Sines showed his spirit with his painted face and American Flag. Wilbur stated, "I went to this extent because my French teacher said football players didn't join in spirit week, so, I had to show her."

The school was crowded with wacky students walking the halls, on Tuesday. Phillip Uphold while wearing a mini skirt kindly stated, "I pity all women who wear such contraptions." On Wednesday, students walked the halls seeing double, only to discover it was twin day, and of course,

"I pity all women who wear such contraptions"

Phillip Uphold

as a tradition Friday was Blue & Gold day. The walls of Northern looked like they moved as the school colors were everywhere. In the afternoon came the Pep Rally, where the whole school came together to show their school & spirit. The band played, the cheerleaders yelled, and the students yelled back. Another tradition during the Homecoming week is to crown the Queen and King who were Ashley Robinson and Petey Stein. School spirit was shown throughout the week in many ways. This spirit pumped up the football team who went on to beat the Turkey Foot Ram's 39 to 6.

Due to scheduling conflicts the Homecoming dance was held the following week. Students listened to Johnny Rock rock the night with the newest hits. Tinsa Wilt said, "The thing I liked the most was when I danced and got to chill with my friends."

What does Homecoming mean to you?

"It was fun and also strange to dress differently."

Barbara Hall

"I was thinking why not (wear the American flag). It was an on the moment thing. It turned out to be a great thing to do."

Brandi Fazenbaker

Favorite pastime

"My favorite band is Limpbizkit because they're cool, and they are out of control."

Ben Willams

"My favorite TV show is Philly because they're all up in your face and sarcastic."

Koby Barclay

What is your favorite thing and why? Well, everyone has a favorite band or kind of music, or maybe even a favorite TV show. Some students and teachers have shared their favorites.

Andrew Holman likes rock music, "I like rock music because it has a great sound that you can get into and the lyrics go along with my life."

Another student Sophia Holtschneider, explains why she likes the band Linkin Park. She says, "I like them because the beat is incredible, and also because their songs can relate to any bad relationship."

TV shows are another place where students had favorites. Devon Harman explains why she likes the show "Who's Line Is It Anyway?." She says "because it's funny and people have to make things up on the spot, and it's funny to hear what they come up with." So many people have many favorites and all for many different reasons.

Many things have changed since the 80's like our music and TV shows. The popular bands back then were Def Leppard, ACDC, Quiet Riot, Styx, and Journey "and they were much different than today's music" said Mr Pri. He also mentioned the popular TV shows that were around which were "Dallas", "Dukes of Hazzard", "Mas", "The Cosby Show", "St. Elsewhere", "Hill Street Blues", and "Family Ties". Some of todays favorite mu bands are Linkin Park, Korn, Stained, Disturbed and Nickleback. Some of our TV shows today are The Simpsons, 7th heaven, Scrubs, Titus, fear factor and Passions.

As these examples show, each generation changes quite a bit as well as their music and TV shows. But we all still enjoy music and TV just the same.

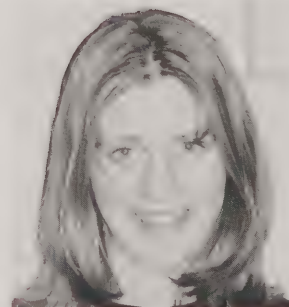

Heidi Preston

What is your favorite...?

"I like 3 Doors Down because they have relaxing music that I really enjoy."

Keith Durst

"My favorite movie is Cinderella because "her whole life is torn up but then one night everything changes for her, and she gets everything she had ever wished for."

Terah Sines

Many people enjoy listening to music. Jacquetta Brenneman says, "I listen to music on the bus because it is relaxing and the music that the bus driver plays is not my taste."

Movies are a favorite even in the classroom Yesha Patel says she likes watching movies because "watching movies helps us to understand real life situations."

"My favorite TV show is "Dismissed" on MTV because basically it shows how people can switch opinions when they are dumped, also how hard they try to compete."

Katie Wilson

"My favorite band is Linkin Park because the beat really gets me going."

Mr. Ables

"My favorite singer is Ja Rule because he raps good, and he has a neat singing voice that not only I enjoy."

Derek Workman

"My favorite Movie is American Pie 2 because it is really funny."

Billy Jones

"My favorite TV show is the Simpsons because I think it is really funny."

Kris Carr

Many people find TV very interesting. Andrew Holman says that "watching movies in school gives us a nice break from work."

We enjoy the wide variety of Mr. Price's music" says John Beachy and Joseph Garlitz.

A New Tradition

"At Winter Homecoming, I had a lot of fun. I really enjoyed dancing with Dustin."

Nicole Kovach

Winter Homecoming was a great success for student council as well as for the students. I had tons of fun laughing and dancing with friends, especially with my cute escort Micah Plevyak."

Coty Warn

On December 15, 2001 Winter Homecoming was a great experience for all. This was the first winter dance ever and a spring dance is planned also.

In order to have a dance the student council needs to raise money. Kristen Schefft said, "We fundraised by selling hoagies in order to make enough money to buy decorations and food, but in the end everything turned out the way we wanted it, and we were successful. It seems as though everything worked out and everyone really enjoyed themselves, which was what we were hoping."

"The student council worked hard and put a lot into it but believed it was successful."

- Courtney Resh

Many people believe that the dances would be better if we could get more students to come. One freshman who agrees with this is Aaron Rawe. He says "It would be a great thing to have a spring dance if we could get more people to come to it." Another student council representative was Courtney Resh; according to Courtney, the student council worked hard and put a lot into it and believed it was successful also.

Students felt that the dance was successful and said they would hope the next one was as successful as this one was. It seems that everyone who went enjoyed themselves and had a great time while they were there.

- Heidi Preston & Amanda Swauger

What did you think about our first Winter Homecoming?

"It was fun, but we need to get more people to come. So I think having it next year would be a good idea."

Marybeth Hershberger

"The dance was a lot of fun and everyone seemed to be enjoying themselves."

Ruthann Ketner

I was really excited that I was chosen to be on court for the first Winter Homecoming dance" says Lakin Weimer. (Below Right)

Kody Butler and Brandi Perez take a break from dancing. "I had a lot of fun at the dance with my boyfriend. I was glad that there was a winterball it gives people a chance to get out and just have some extra fun," said Brandi.

Waiting patiently to see who won for the winter court, Lyndsi Butler said "It felt good knowing that you are liked in school."

Enjoying his moment of winning as king, Jensen Long says "It was alot of fun, I enjoyed dancing with my friends and had a really great time." Jolene Brenneman, queen of Winter Homecoming, shares a dance with Jensen.

"It was a lot of fun compared to what I thought it would be."

Kayla Miller

"I really enjoyed the dance it was a lot of fun I thought."

Anthony Little

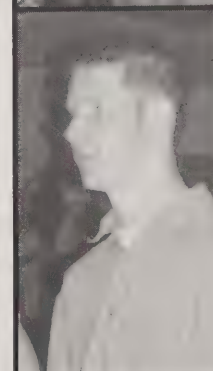

"The winter dance was a huge success. I really enjoyed it, and I was glad to have Greg as my escort."

Amanda Frantz

"I really enjoyed the winter dance especially with Stephanie Foutz."

John Dewitt

Snowball Hits the Dance Floor

"Snowball was a lot of fun and it also gave my friends, and I a chance to hang out and catch up on the news."

Nicole Kovach

"Snowball was definitely boring because I drove two hours to get there from the races and stayed for about one hour and then left."

John Dewitt

For a third year in a row, the Snowball Dance was cancelled and had to be rescheduled. Unlike previous years where weather caused problems, this year an outage of electricity caused the cancellation.

On the rescheduled date of March 2nd, the evening began at approximately 8:00pm. People started arriving at their own pace, dressed in their finest. While some stood on the upper level of the cafeteria waiting for their friends or dates to arrive, others were getting started by dancing the night away.

"Snowball this year was boring because the wrestlers who went to states were not there," stated John Beachy. As the "High School dances are better than Middle Schools because you do not care how stupid you look and in Middle School all you do is sit at a table looking dumb."

Tiffany Yoder

evening progressed more and more students started moving into the lower half of the cafeteria. Some danced to the beat of the music, while others sat on the side with friends and dates.

Soon time came for the crowning of the King and Queen and also the Lettermen initiation. Anthony Little and Coty Warn were announced as Snowball King and Queen. Also honored at the dance were 11th graders Darric Kamp and Courtney Resh, 10th graders Rico Alston and Kayla Kamp, 9th graders Michael Wolf and Lakin Weimer for Prince and Princess. Meanwhile the new members of the Lettermen had to dance in a group. "The Lettermen initiation was hilarious" stated Stephanie Foutz.

Around 11:00 p.m. Jonny Rock and his crew played the final song. While some danced to the song, others were saying their final good-byes. "It is a good thing it was not a school night," stated Wendy Beiler.

-Jessica McCrobie and Amanda Fazenbaker

How was Snowball for you?

"Snowball for me this year was a lot of fun."

Kayla Kamp

"Last years Snowball was better, but there were more people and all of the runners for court were there."

Candra Bauermaster

Carrie Friend and Jodi Fratz catch up on the news while walking to the dance floor. "Snowball was a lot of fun and also very exciting because I was with my friends and could dance with whichever guy I wanted," quoted Carrie.

Taking a break from the dance floor, Robert Andres catches up on the latest news. "Snowball this year has been a lot of fun, and I had a good time hanging out with all of my friends," quoted Robert. (Below Right)

Being escorted by Joel Resh, Coty Warn was announced Snowball Queen. "Snowball was a very memorable and exciting night. I had a great time with my friends and it was such a surprise to win Snowball Queen for 2002," quoted Coty Warn.

After a long night of dancing Megan Shaffer keeps the energy high. "My first Snowball was a lot of fun, much better than the 8th grade dances," quoted Megan Shaffer (Above Right)

"When they played Nsync's "Dirty Pop" song at the dance it gave the guard a good chance to practice in front of people, but it was difficult because of the giant dresses we were wearing."

Sophi Holtschneider

"Snowball was a lot of fun and also very exciting because I was crowned princess for the freshman class."

Lakin Weimer

"Snowball was definately spootie-oodie-dope- a- licious because we were dancing spootie-oodie style."

Matthew Younkin

Sleeves Up

"Giving blood was a good idea because I know that someone will need it some day."

Josh Perez

"I donated because I liked that it was going to help someone else."

Heather Broadwater

On May 1, 2002 more students were rolling up their sleeves than ever before. Many people said that they were a little nervous to roll up their sleeves, but they knew in the end that it was for a good cause. So, they decided to roll up their sleeves, put up their arms and donate blood. When asked why she donated blood, Lisa Rogers said "I donated blood because one of my best friends was in a bad car wreck a month ago and almost died from loss of blood. I had been considering giving blood already, but that sealed it. I couldn't imagine anyone else almost losing someone because they couldn't get blood. " People had many different reasons for why they donated. Bethany Garlitz responded, "I donated blood because I

"...I thought hey, I'm not using it, might as well give it away."

-Bethany Garlitz

knew it could save a life in the future. I was a little nervous about donating, but I thought, hey, I'm not using it, might as well give it away."

Donating blood can in fact save lives and help others, and that is what most of the donors were thinking about when they decided to donate. When asked why she donated, Brandi Fazenbaker replied, "I donated to blood because I wanted to be able to help others. Knowing I could save a life makes my day brighter."

Seventy-six students in all rolled up their sleeves on May 1, 2002 to help others and to save the lives of others. The 76 students that donated blood this year helped to create a record breaking year in blood donations at high school in the county this year.

- Valery Miller and

"It really hurt giving blood, but I knew I should do it because it helps so many people," stated Annie Donaldson

Justin Fontaine, first time blood doner commented "Since it was my first time giving blood, I was a little nervous."

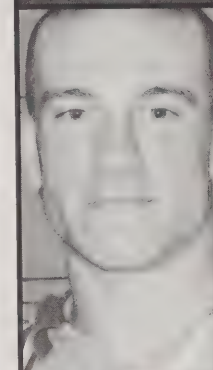

"It's always good to help others, and one pint saves a life."

Mr. Grove

"I donated because I like to help out others. Plus some day my family might need blood, and I would be thankful for the person who helped them out."

Marybeth Hershberger

"I donated blood out of a call to civil duty. We should try to help our fellow man in any way we can, especially a way that can save a life."

Mr. Edwards

"I donated blood because I thought it would be good to give something useful to someone in need. Yet I was dissapointed because I went twenty-one minutes and only gave a half a bag."

Tiffany Swiger

"I started and continue to give blood because it's one way I can help someone. I can't expect to receive if I'm not willing to give."

What do you think of when you hear the words "talent show"? You would normally think of something you can do that most other people cannot. Well, at the Northern High School talent show that is not the case. There were people singing, dancing, reading poems, playing instruments, and acting.

This year's talent show participants took a lot of time out of school to practice and prepare. "The talent show took a lot of time and creativity... but it was well worth it, especially the performance for the adults and judges because they recognize the effort that gets put into a couple minute routine." Said Sophia Holtschneider.

Some of the singing performances were done in rap by a few bands. "I was a mad rapper with a buddy of mine, known as Jason Atable because he needed someone to fill in," said Matt Younkin.

There were a few unique shows that got prizes for the time and effort put into their shows. "Christina and I had lots of fun in the show and worked hard. We made a few mistakes in the first show, but the night show went better where we were judged and came in second place," said Katie Grimm.

There were many performances in this year's talent show, and hopefully there will be more shows in the future.

Prom took on a new look this year from the absence of tickets, to a new DJ, and the biggest change of all, a new place. To Maplehurst or Wisp this year, the prom committee decided to give students a try. Over all, students seemed to like the changes. "It would have been better if it wasn't so crowded," states Karie Kamp.

Popular consensus seems to be that the music was better than years past. Music Express replaced the usual DJ. No tickets were issued to the prom goers this year. Many think that they are a waste of money because students receive glasses and memory cards by which to remember the prom; however, others find them a nice addition to a scrapbook.

A lot of preparation and hard work went into making the prom as successful as it was. The prom committee spent a grueling 16 hours cleaning and decorating the hall before guests arrived, not to mention months of planning. "I appreciate now more than ever the value of all the work that goes into prom, and of course all of the people who devoted their time and ideas to help with the event," stated Mr. Nicklin, prom advisor.

Where's the Sun?

Hot weather, bikinis and swimming are things people think of when someone mentions the "beach". The Class of 2002 would say different.

Thirty two seniors went to Virginia Beach on a three day two night trip, for the first time in six years. "The most exciting part of the senior trip was hanging out and having fun with friends," says Adrian Broadrick.

Instead of finding a sunny beach full of guys and girls in swimwear, they encountered cold, rainy weather. "I had fun, even though it was raining,

"The senior trip allowed me to see some place new."

we still went to the beach and went swimming though," said Autumn Rizer.

On the first day there, the seniors went to Busch Gardens where they rode roller coasters, some for the first time. Then on the second day, they spent the whole day at the beach.

Finally, on the third day, they checked out of the hotel at 11:00 am, but unfortunately the bus was broken down, and they didn't get to leave until approximately 1:00 pm. On the way home, they stopped to eat at the Golden Corral and made it back to Northern High School at 9:00 pm. "I had fun and wouldn't mind going again. It was everything a senior trip should be," said Lee Wiley.

reflecting on the past

Fiftieth anniversary proved to be unique and special for both the students from the 50th and the 1st classes.

Ashley Robinson

Coty Warn sang the "Star Spangled Banner" as the graduation ceremony began. She was among academically distinguished students who had the privilege of wearing gold honors chords along with the traditional cap and gown.

The speaker, Gordon Wright, was a member of the graduating class of 1953 which was the first graduating class from our school. This year being the fiftieth anniversary was only one aspect that made graduation special.

It has finally arrived. The day that every high school student dreams of—graduation day. With anticipation and stomachs filled with swooping butterflies each student is handed their diploma, a symbol of their hard work and dedication.

For the past fifty years a tradition for graduating students has been created. In this tradition, students have received their diplomas, accepted awards, and some presented speeches while proud parents, relatives, and friends watched. This year was no exception. Although the tradition has remained, there were many differences in this year's graduating ceremony. One event that made this year unique was that it was the fiftieth anniversary. To make this year special, the speaker, Gordon Wright, was a member of the graduating class of 1953, which was the first class to graduate from our school. "The senior class committee choose Gordon Wright to be the speaker at graduation upon the recommendation of Mr. McKenzie, who knew him personally. The committee wanted to choose a person from the first graduating class of our school," said Ms. Ellis.

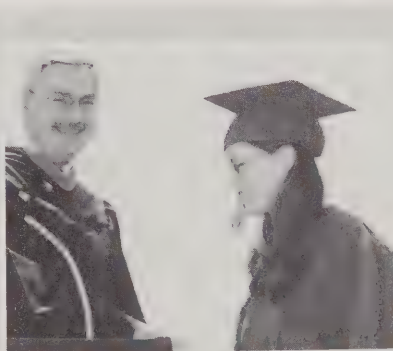

Along with past events, this ceremony involved a new tradition. The faculty wore gowns along with the seniors. The colors on the hood of each gown represented the university which the teacher attended and the degree that was earned. This tradition will be continued throughout future graduations. Although this year's graduation started new traditions, there were many past traditions that were carried out. The graduation ceremony began with the "Star Spangled Banner" sung by a member of the 2002 class, Coty Warn. This was followed by introductions and the mantle ceremony, when the senior class president, Bridget Frazee, presented the junior class president, Amanda Frantz, with a mantle representing the presidency. Gordon Wright gave his speech in which he described what NHS was like the very first year it was opened. He told what it was like to have three different schools join together to make one, how the school mascot was created, and what a teenagers life during that time was like. Following tradition, the Salutatory address was given next by Micah Plevyak and the Valedictory address was presented by Todd Foley. Awards were given, the seniors were presented, and diplomas were handed out and firmly grasped by each senior. The class of 2002 was presented and proudly threw their caps in the air as friends and family members watched from the stands.

Although the graduation ceremony followed many of past years traditions it was very unique and special for every student wearing a cap and gown. This was the only high school graduation that they will ever have, and it will be forever remembered by them.

Advantages and Disadvantages

"Yes, I did enjoy band this year, because we got to go to Canada, which was really fun".

Katie Garlitz

"I enjoyed band this year. There were some pretty good times, but with the good comes the bad, and there were those too. Overall, however, I enjoyed band, and I plan to be in band for the rest of my high school career".

Laci Slagle

When most of the student body thinks of band, all they think of is the trips to places like Las Vegas and Toronto. Many people do not realize all of the time and effort that the band students put into a season.

Shortly after school ends, students in band start to practice for next year's band competition. This practice runs from June, the start of summer to as late as the April or May the next school year. Although, band members get to go on the trips they take, they still end up playing music for a parade or competition while they are on their trips.

Most of the people know the advantages of being in band, but the

"Being in band has made me part of a group and has brought me close to a lot of people."
-Megan Sisler

students agree that there are also disadvantages. Megan Sisler said that "Being in band has made me part of a group and has brought me close to a lot of people." Cristy Holler said that "The advantage of being in band is the fact that you get to meet all kinds of people." Brandy Fike stated that "An advantage of band is winning competitions and meeting new people, and the spring trips are a plus".

But there is a flip side to being in band. Megan also said that "The only bad thing is that some people might think that band takes up a lot of time and energy." Cristy said that "The disadvantage is that for two months, you have no life".

Although, there are disadvantages in band, the band also realizes that when you work hard, it pays off in a very rewarding way. That advantage for them is a big spring trip to places like Hawaii, Las Vegas, and Toronto, Canada.

-Natalie Ganoe

What is the best part of Band?

"Sure, trumpets are the best."
Nick Miller

"Yes, it was great fun marching with all of the band members"
Ben Winter

On the trip to Toronto, Matt Bass enjoys himself as being the king of the party. Matt said that "I enjoyed it for the most part, there were some things that weren't that fun, but Canada and the shows were fun."

At band show, Amanda Sisler very proudly shows off her talents in flag twirling. Amanda said that "I liked the spring trip the most."

As a show is approaching, Miriah Fletcher tries very hard to learn the music for the upcoming show. Miriah said that "I enjoy band every year because I get to spend some extra time with my friends and the competitions are always fun."

As the band marches, Megan Sisler very proudly plays her clarinet for the crowd. Megan said that "I've loved band all 4 years, but my clarinets made my senior year better than what I ever thought it would be".

"This year was my first year to march while playing. It was a new and enjoyable experience. I also had the chance to compete in Toronto".
Darsey Branthoover

"We did well considering that it was mostly underclassmen".
Michaele Puliti

"I enjoy band every year, it is only the most fulfilling activity in the school".
Amanda Bell

"Even though we practice long and hard. It pays off in the end".
Leslie Gaither

"I enjoyed band this year, because other than the competitions, we had a lot of fun on the trips that we took to places like Toronto and Scranton".

Prizers for after-prom were donated by businesses. The prizes included a television, skateboards, movie passes, and a C.D. player along with many other items.

Relaxing during after-prom party, Kristen Schefft, Tiffany Swiger, and Kristin Hoffman take a moment to pose for a quick picture. After-prom offered so many activities that students rarely had nothing to do.

Enjoying the after-prom party, Jayne Miller, tries her skills with the hula-hoop. Without the support of the community, students like Jayme would not have been able to have such fun.

Proudly displaying their monetary prizes, the students found that after-prom really "paid off." Recipients of monetary prizes included the following: Chris Martinez- $1,000 , April Miller- $ 250, John Beachy-$500, and Brian Covell- $250 .

Ben Winter struggles to make a basket while his unseen partner struggles to do the same on the inflatable court. This was just one of the many fun games available at after-prom.

THE COMMUNITY IN OUR SCHOOL

Local Businesses Lend a Helping Hand

Local businesses are a very important part of our school. They often provide funds that keep organizations within the school up and running. The yearbook and newspaper depend on their ads and donations for their productions. Also, businesses are often involved in fundraisers, sports, and dances- prom and after-prom in particular.

The glitter, glamour, and memories would not be without the support of businesses such as Art Butler

Auto Sales, Gonder Insurance Agency, and Railey Realty. Donations from local businesses have helped to provide decorations, food, and music to make prom the most memorable night of our high school careers.

Also, activities and prizes for the after-prom were possible because of these donations. Seniors, juniors, and their guests enjoyed playing games, watching movies, and just hanging out with their friends all night. Some fortunate students even won prizes of money, a T.V., skateboards, and movie passes, among many others.

Local businesses are not only important when planning dances but also when ordering sports uniforms. Donations are used to buy uniforms, equipment, and other supplies. If businesses did not support our school as they do, our Husky athletes would be forced to provide the money needed for uniforms, transportation to competitions, and other equipment out of their own pockets.

Without the help of the businesses surrounding our school, many activities would not be available to students. So on behalf of the students and staff of Northern Garrett High School, the Northstar Yearbook staff would like to pass on a hearty "Thank You" to the many businesses who have lent a helping hand to our school over the past year. Your donations and support are much appreciated.

Andrea Opel

"To be involved in the community, I help coach an under six soccer team. I also help out at my church and the local library."

Carrie Friend

"I do community service, especially as a member of the Bittinger Lutheran Parish Youth Group and also help with the youth basketball league and Dribbler's Club."

Landon Southerly

"As part of the band, I attend most parades, like Memorial Day and Grantsville Days. When the entire community comes out to hear you, it's very rewarding. People need entertainment."

Dallas Miller

"As a member of the FFA and having Ag Classes in Mr. Deal's class, I helped out with the plant sale that we had during the 2002 school year."

Kimberly Bowser

"For an entire school year I was a member of AmeriCorp where I helped middle school students with their homework. Plus I contributed to their recreation session, where we played games or sports."

Brandon Fugitt

"To be involved in the community I do a lot of church related activities. I am involved in the Glade Mennonite Church, youth group and also the church's puppet team. Along the same lines of the puppet team I do children's lesson on Sundays-sometimes with a puppet."

A Look At The

Through The Years

Teachers, coaches, female staff noisy halls and much riff-raff bellies revealed and wide boy shoes the mack truck of some kid's attitudes driving into my room.

High school standards have rocketed high each testing day met with a great sigh from students, teachers, guidance and such Do you think we actually learn that much with little parking for mack trucks?

*It's nice to be here for the climate is pleasing though no snow and dampness leaves many folks wheezing
as their mack trucks blaze through the door
Not much has changed
Save the trees a bit taller and my rank on the totem somehow seems smaller as I drive a Honda...and not a mack truck.
-Ms. April Slagle*

Looking back at the last fifty years many accomplishments, advancements, and overall changes can be seen. Everything seems so different; from the types of clothing people wore, the cars people drove, the sports people played, the layout of the school, even the classes offered were very different.

'76 graduate, Danny Friend, commented that the biggest change he noticed in NHS from "then" to "now" was the large increase of student population. Obviously as the student body expands so must the school. The math wing and auxiliary gym are two of the newest additions that we can relate to in the history of NHS. Sometimes we just assume that things have been around forever, but really they haven't. The track around the football field, the dawg house, and the concession stand are all more recent advancements. Even classrooms have changed. According to '75 graduate Mrs. Debbie Ahern, the library was once located on the second floor where Mrs. Noonan's class is now, the counseling center used to be the home-ec room, and Mr. Perfetti's computer lab, (beside the library) was once the main office. Some things, however don't change. She had Mr. Douds for her drivers ed class, just as sophomores still do, Mr. Yunker was her History teacher, and Mrs. Nice was her business communications teacher.

Look at this page and you will see the noticeable differences from the past; the clothing, hairstyles, and vehicles. As technology becomes more advanced, more and more generations are becoming "old fashioned." Fashion, technology and, terminology will continue to rapidly change, but the memory of high school will vividly remain.

In Action

1. Mr. Yunker instructs his class. During his tenure at NHS, Mr. Yunker has taught class such as Psychology and Advanced Placement U.S. History.
2. Mrs. Moyer assists Will Gallagher as he assembles his project. Through the Vocational Department, Mrs. Moyer was able to help students in classes ranging from Carpentry to Business Education.
3. Mr. Himmler encourages Erin Sines as she works out on the rowing machine. Just one of Mr. Himmler's contributions to Northern was starting the Girls' Track Team.
4. Paul Beitzel consults Mr. Montgomery before adding the last piece of a shelf. Mr. Montgomery left his mark on both the students and the school itself, from helping students through the years build numerous houses to creating one of the most technologically advanced classrooms at NHS.

Imagine waking up one morning, deciding what you want to do that day and acutally being able to do it . . . when you want to. That's an option that four of Northern's staff and faculty members now have everyday for the rest of their lives.

At the close of the school year, they looked forward to a furture of fun and relaxation; however, perhaps what is more important than their futures perhaps what is more important is what they've left behind.

Retirement from many jobs means leaving behind a legacy of accomplishments; retirement from teaching means leaving behind a legacy of lives you have touched in one way or another, whether they be the lives or students or colleagues. This is certainly true of the retirees from NHS this year. While they may no longer be present in the building, the effects they've had on students and other staff and faculty members will be around for a long time
